

Kingdom of Death

Somewhere in the universe there is a planet. It's inhabited by so called intelligent creatures. These creatures think they are allowed to do anything they want. They think they are the most or even the only intelligent creatures. They do many things that are supposed to give them pleasure. But do they really get the pleasure? Are they really like they think they are?

No. Their planet is rather kingdom of death then kingdom of life and joy. And not only because the creatures are physically mortal. They are often dead for the world that surrounds them. Stuff they take and actions they do destroy them from inside. And not only. Some of them are only wrecks. Their bodies are wrecks.

But what they do destroys also society they live in. Words and actions destroy families and relations. Suicide is a common way of "getting out" of trouble. These creatures don't really know what they do.

Even if they think they're happy, they know it's only temporary happiness. Or deep inside them they know that their life is only a misery. But they don't know or don't want to know that there is someone who cares about them. Someone who wants the best for them and has answer for all of their problems.

This planet is Earth and creatures are humans. What they do, leads to death only. Most of them ignore their creator – GOD. They don't know, don't want to know or often forget that he always loves and cares about them. And only thing they have to do is believe and take the gift.
